In the afternoon, one hundred guns were fired, partly in honor of the day, and also in celebration of the recent Republican triumphs in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Missouri, Michigan, and other States. In the evening, a large audience assembled at Odd Fellows Hall, to hear an oration in memory of the life, character, and principles of Mr. Jefferson. The occasion was enlivened by the presence of the Marine Band, which played national and patriotic airs at the intervals in the proceedings. Francis P. Blair, sen., Esq., presided, and introduced the proceedings by the following address, which briefly and perspicuously sets forth the nature and objects of the Republican organization. Gentlemen: There never was a more propitious moment than the present to revive the recollection of the principles and Administration of Jefferson. When a spurious currency has filled the channels of circulation, it can only be expelled by putting it in competition with the real standard of value. We have a party in power who affect to represent Mr. Jefferson, and carry out his doctrines in the conduct of the Government. They take the name of National Democrats. The Republican party have brought this counterfeit presentment of the true faith which Mr. Jefferson inculcated to the test in the measures they have submitted to the country, to restore the original principles of the Government I propose, as a preface to the proceedings of this meeting, to...
