Every part of the body has blood coming to it. That is why your finger or any other part of the body always bleeds, if you cut it deep enough. What are the capillaries? By the time the blood gets to your finger, it is travelling through very small blood-vessels called the capillaries. These little capillaries run everywhere so that no part of the body the size of the head of a pin is without a blood supply. What happens to a part of the body that loses its circulation? If any part of the body loses its blood supply, that part dies. If you were to tie a rubber band around your finger so tight that no blood reached the finger, the finger would turn blue and in time would die and drop off. Can you do anything to keep the...
