Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Great Convention: Description of the Convention of the People of Ohio, Held at Columbus, on the 21st and 22d February, 1840 The proceedings of the Convention, on the important objects which formed the reasons of its convocation, will be read in another part of this sheet. To lay these before the reader has been an easy task and a pleasant. But how shall we describe the Convention itself? How portray the features of its moral countenance - the lineaments which imparted to him who looked upon the scene and its incidents, the tone, the temper and character of the whole? How transfer to paper the spirit, the pathos, the sentiment that moved upon the hearts of the multitude of patriot men assembled here on Saturday? It is a hopeless effort. Equally powerless is language to convey to the mind the full and perfect effect and bearing of the occasion and its developments, as is the pencil to delineate to the eye the spectacle of Niagara in its sublimity and grandeur. The reader will not discredit what we may say, nor yet will our narrative communicate to his mind the faith and the impression which resulted to one who saw with his eye, and heard with his ear, and understood with his heart the events of this imposing and unprecedented demonstration. One reads the speech of an eloquent orator - he embraces the thoughts - he comprehends the written words - and considerably speculates on their significance; but, how short does he come of the impression which was made on him who looked into the eye and listened to the voice - and imbibed the...
