Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Minimum Courses of Study Prepared for the High Schools and Academies of Vermont Probably nothing could be more beneficial to the students of the secondary schools than an opportunity to discover earlier and more definitely their aptitudes and abilities. If preparation for life is an important function of the high school, then a larger opportunity should be given the student body of the secondary schools in order that each may find out the vocation for which he is especially fitted. Not only does industrial training furnish the individual pupil with a body of useful knowledge and a cultivation of his motor activities, but it develops his powers of observation, reasoning and judgment, cultivates his creative and executive abilities, and trains him in self-control and accuracy. Industrial education appeals to parents and pupils as something sensible and practical, and it will afford a field in which unscholastic pupils can work to great advantage. A feeling is rife today that there is a lack of wholesome respect for law and constituted authority, that adherence to old-time principles...
